

ABSTRACT

A lifetime of a display is optimized by determining whether to control at least a 5 portion of a display based on a lifetime metric. A plurality of display control options is identified in response to determining to control the portion of the display, and one of the display control options is selected.